VANCOUVER SUN Q Search Sign In Subscribe $\triangleright \times$

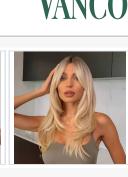

Sections

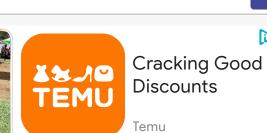

X

Local News

Canada 150: Pamela Anderson a centennial-day baby who became a global sex icon There's little dispute that Pamela Anderson is a pop culture icon of enormous reach, magnitude — and ironic contradictions. Stephen Hume

Published Jun 12, 2017 · Last updated Jun 13, 2017 · 2 minute read

☐ Join the conversation

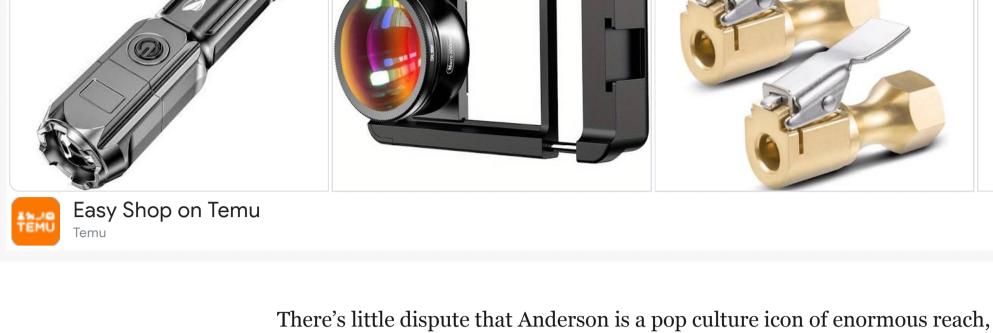

profiles of 150 noteworthy British Columbians. She's been called TV's first sex goddess. Cultural critic Chuck Klosterman called

To mark Canada's 150th birthday, we are counting down to Canada Day with her "the embodiment of modern female sexuality." The Encyclopedia of British Columbia dryly notes that at the end of the 20th century, she could claim to be the most widely recognized Canadian in the world.

STORY CONTINUES BELOW PRICE DROP

magnitude — and ironic contradictions.

In the Wall Street Journal, she has denounced pornography as being for losers, but has appeared on the cover of Playboy magazine 15 times, more than any other woman. She played a comic book superhero in the 1996 movie Barb Wire, set, amusingly, in a dystopian future 2017 in which the United States was in thrall to Donald Trump-like villains. And she has appeared, bereft of cosmetic enhancements, in the avant-garde science fiction short Connected, a moral tale about physical decay, the cult of beauty, and a coming singularity in which humans merge with machines. She had breast implants, then had them removed. She now advocates against breast augmentation. An explicit sex tape made with her then-husband Tommy Lee, drummer with the metal band Motley Crue, was stolen and sold online. But critics say public fascination with the controversial video and sympathy for the victim amped up her career. The tape is now thought to possibly be the most widely distributed film in history. STORY CONTINUES BELOW PRICE DROP

it affordable

in flames

Coquitlam man charged

'Oo, I'm so scared': A

Canadian house responds to Ottawa's pledge to make \triangleright

West Vancouver's 'Party House With a View' goes up game, wearing a Labatt's T-shirt, that beer company advertising executives spotted her on the stadium's scoreboard display and deftly signed her to an advertising contract as "The Blue Zone Girl." She later appeared on the cover of Playboy, snagged a minor role in the television comedy Home Improvement, and took a major role in the action melodrama Baywatch, one of the most widely watched television shows with more than a billion viewers each week.

York Marathon at age 46 — then worked as a waitress. At age 19, she moved to

She owes her roller-coaster ride to fame to the B.C. Lions. It was at a football

She has two children from three marriages and campaigns actively for human rights, animal rights, against domestic violence, and for environmental causes. "I am the ultimate California girl," Anderson has said, "which is funny, being that I'm Canadian."

Is there more to this story? We'd like to hear from you about this or any other stories you think we should know about. Email vantips@postmedia.com.

CLICK HERE to report a typo.

Vancouver.

details on how to adjust your email settings.

The conversation is now closed keep your comments relevant and respectful. We have enabled email notifications—you will now receive an email if you receive a reply to your comment, there is an update to a comment thread you follow or if a user you follow comments. Visit our Community Guidelines for more information and

JOIN THE CONVERSATION

NEWEST 🗸 ☐ Start the conversation

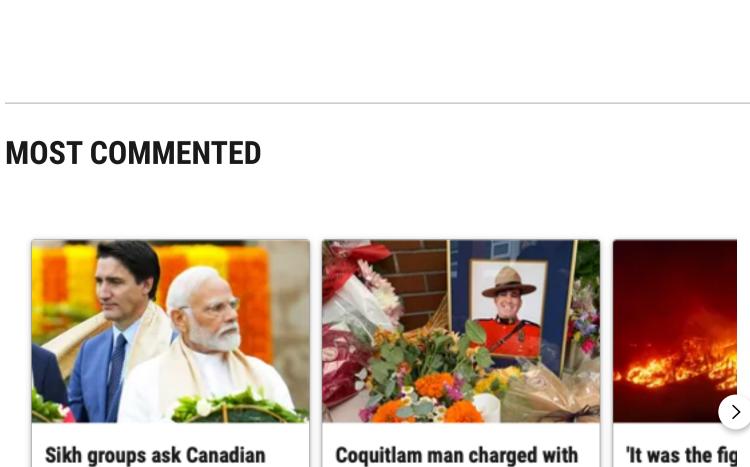

Login/Create an Account

Subscribe for Unlimited

Online Access

FOLLOW

ALL COMMENTS

murder as condolences pour

8 comments

ADVERTISEMENT

ADVERTISEMENT

political parties to present

ATEST NATIONAL STORIES

THIS WEEK IN FLYERS

© 2023 Vancouver Sun, a division of Postmedia Network Inc. All rights reserved. Unauthorized distribution, transmission or republication strictly prohibited.

16 comments

West Kelown

☐ 18 comme

News Sports Opinion Business Arts Life Homes ePaper Subscribe